

Once upon a time, there was a class of students going on a field trip camping in the forest to celebrate fall break. Before they got to the forest, there was a blizzard and the bus couldn't move. So all the students and teachers got out of the bus while the bus driver was trying to turn on the engine. All of a sudden, they started to hear strange noises coming from the direction of the forest. One of the teachers had a dog that was good at sensing movement. The dog's name was Rocky. Rocky sensed movement in the direction of the forest and Rocky started heading there. The students and teachers attempted to stop Rocky, but they couldn't. Moments later, they heard Rocky howl for help. They tried to get closer to the sound of Rocky's howl, but as they got closer, his howl seemed to fade away. After that, they smelled a strange odor. They followed the odor and eventually got to a cave. They smelled Rocky's odor and they were able to hear Rocky's howl. Everyone was scared to go inside of the cave, but the bus driver volunteered to go rescue Rocky inside of the cave. Five minutes later, fire came out of the cave and the bus driver came out of the cave holding Rocky, but they both had ash on them and smelled like fire. The students and teachers asked what had happened and the bus driver told them to just run. While they were running, a fire-breathing dragon came out of the cave. They kept running and the fire-breathing dragon kept on following them. The dragon followed them until halfway through the forest, then he got tired and turned back. They all got back to the bus safely and they treated Rocky with first aid. They stayed on the bus waiting until sunrise, but they were scared because they heard the dragon was angry. Sunrise finally came, and they got rescued. It was a scary field trip.